A New Fad in Visiting Cards-Colors and Decorations for "Season Luncheons"-Personal.

Numbers of ladies are having their address put on their visiting cards in a new fashion, thus, No. 298 Meridian street, North; or, No. 52 Michigan street, East. it is questionable taste. It seems awkward. No one would of saving Mr. Brown, Charles, or Mr. Smith, John; Miss Robinson, Alice, or Miss Ball, Belle. The spreading custom of a married woman calling herself by her husband's surname, with no distinguishing initials, is a very confusing matter. When one knows half a dozen Mrs. Smiths, for example, it is not easy to set one apart at sight of her card from the rest if her address does not assist one. In small places where the street and number are not added to the card confusion reigns worse confounded. All the mighty war which waged in the Astor family, as to which was really "Mrs. Astor" pure and simple comes to the surface wherever this fashionable whim is attempted.

Season Luncheons.

"Pink," "white" "brown," and other designations for luncheons are known, and now the New York Herald tells us a pretty idea is to have "season luncheons," when four tables may be set to represent the four seasons. Spring has floral decorations of jonquils and daffodils, with white and gold China and yellow satin ribbons to tie the napkins and white ices and bonbons. The summer table is a rose table, with white Haviland, decorated with scattered rose buds, sweets and ices, rose-tinted or served in the form of roses. Autumn may have the luncheon cloth strewn with cherries in their natural tints, bowls heaped with grapes and with the glowing red and yellow beauty of nesturtium and golden rod, while the winter table may be appropriately mod eled after the dinner table first described It is a pretty costume to give a farewell luncheon or breakfast if one is going abroad for an extended tour and have the floral decorations express a parting sentiment. A forget-me-not or pansy luncheon is appropriate and inexpensive. There are now in market beautiful plates dotted all over with | Prisons of Paris" of Miss Hauck's. these flowers, and with bowls filled with either the blue or purple blossoms and a knot to present to each guest.

Her Favorite Color.

There seems to be something about the name Olive which induces eccentricity. Miss Olive Risley Seward, a writer, has adopted the color olive as an inseparable adjunct of her personality. Her wardrobe is composed of gowns, hats and wraps which, as far as possible, do not depart in color from the brief gamut of clive tints. But so artistically are these tints combined, and so varied is the combination of materials and trimmings, that it never becomes monotonous Instead of that one carries away a pleasant impression. Miss Seward writes stories for children, and, at her request, these are published only in olive bindings. In her study in her Washington house the predominating tint is the olive.

Modern Dolls. What lovely paper dolls are showered with all other good things, on the little girls of to-day. Their forebears were content with "Minnie Miller" and "Rosy Rustio" and some dozen others who had five or six frocks apiece, and who were gaily and crudely colored. Nowadays there are dainty creatures done in water colors, with innumerable gowns of tissue paper and hats and parasols galore. They are even made with joints "like a real baby," and are nearly as large, some of them, as the flesh and blood infant.

Mrs. M. H. Spades gave a very delightful reception in honor of her guests, Mrs. Car-rie B. Johnson and Mrs. O. W. Williams, of Cincinnati, Miss Stevens of Cleveland, and Miss Whitcomb of Indianapolis, Wednesday evening last. Her beautiful home on Bridge street was prettily decorated and bright when the friends bidden to honor her guests arrived. The evening was delightfully spent with music and bright conversation. Mrs. Johnson is an accomplished musician, making the piano her especial forte and playing the most difficult pieces with ease. She has been a pupil of Moszkowski. She played, without notes, "Entincelles," one of his compositions, displaying wonderful technique. A Berceuse from Chopin, tender and delicate, was equally well given, as was "Rondo Capriccioso." It is a matter of regret that her visit was so short. Mrs. Spades also delighted her guests with her singing. She has a sweet, flexible voice, under perfect control, an excellent method, singing "Oh, that We Were Young," by Nevins; another of his, "One Spring Morning," was equally delightful. She also sang one or two child songs beautifully .- St. Augustine Society Note. Mrs. Laura Struby, Mrs. Henry Kothe, Mrs. Otto Lieber and Miss Anna Lieber, assisted by Mrs. Herman Lieber, entertained a large party of friends yesterday afternoon at the new German Clubhous on East Michigan street. The parlors and the large dining hall on the second floor were utilized for the gathering. At 2 o'clock guests arrived for a progressive euchre party, and they were seated at eighteen tables in the dining hall. At 3 o'clock, other guests, swelling the number to more than one hundred, were welcomed in the ladies' parlors for a coffee. The hal and rooms were adorned with garlands of green, palms and carnations. The card players were awarded handsome prizes. All the guests received carnations as fafors. About 5 o'clock the entire company was seated in the dining hall at the card tables and several long tables, and were served to a supper of several courses. An orchestra played a varied programme dur-ing the afternoon. The entertainment was the first private one given in the new building, and its many advantages were noticeable. Among the guests were Mrs. C. T. Pfaff and Mrs. Oscar Rieman, of Terre

BANK SUITS' PHASES

Receiver Hawkins's Answer in a Case Involving a Draft.

Petition to Have Another Case Transferred to the Federal Court-In the County Courts.

Receiver Hawkins has filed his answer in the federal court, in the suit against him by Susan Steidel, to recover $2,263.33. On July 13 last she deposited that amount in the Indianapolis National Bank, purchasing with it a New York draft which she sent to somebody in California. Before the draft got back to the Third National Bank of New York, on which it was drawn, the Indianapolis National had gone to the wall, and it was, of course, protested. The receiver, in his answer, claims that from July 13 until July 24, the day the bank closed finally, thousands and thousands of dollars were received and paid out, and it is not possible to trace the money in question. The answer is, in the main, similar all the answers in these cases. Ferd Winter brought the suit for Mrs. Steidel. Receiver Hawkins has made application to have the suit brought in the Superior Court of this county against him by Jeffery, Powell & Co., live stock dealers, transferred to the federal court. This case involves about $900 deposited in checks and drafts by the above-named firm during the closing days of the bank's career. The plaintiffs filed and proved their claim, with other depositors, as required by the Controller of the Currency, took the receiver's certificate for their 25 per cent. dividend recently paid, but when the Wasson decision was rendered by Judge Baker, concluded they would make an effort to recover the entire amount of the deposits and so brought suit. The receiver claims they were tendered the money on their certificate, but refused to accept it, though still retaining the certificate. This, the receiver urges, is a negotiable paper and that the plaintiffs do not offer to surrender it even though they have brought suit for the full amount.

MISSOURI IRON HALL FUNDS. Failey Will Not Get Them Unless Claims Are Accepted.

A dispatch from St. Louis says: "In the Circuit Court, to-day, before Judge Klein, the application of Receiver James F. Failey, of the Iron Hall, for an order transferring the society's funds in the hands of the Missouri receiver to the general receiver came up and arguments were heard, as well as statements as to the wishes of Missouri members of the society. At their conclusion Judge Klein directed the attorneys in the case to draw up an order which would satisfy them and he would consider it and render a decision ater. This the attorneys will do at once. In addition, Judge Klein stated that in the event of his ordering the Missouri funds turned over to the general receiver it would be with the condition that claims approved by the Missouri receiver be accepted and claimants not compelled to prove up their Suit Against a Kokomo Concern.

The Globe Iron-works Company, of Cleveland, O., entered suit in the federal court, yesterday, against the Eagle Paper Company, of Kokomo, for $20,000. In the complaint the plaintiff corporation says it is the assignee of George D. Claffin, jr., of Cleveland, who was formerly in the paper business, under the name of the Central Paper and Machinery Company. This latter company, it is charged, entered into a contract with the Eagle Paper Company to furnish certain equipment for the Kokomo concern, amounting in value to $12,000, that the contract called for the payment of $500 cash and the giving of notes at two and four months for the balance. This contract was made in October, 1892, since which time it is averred that the Central Paper Company has assigned all its rights in this contract to the Globe people, who have not been able to collect the money said to be due on the notes.

Francis M. Webb's Will. The will of Francis M. Webb was probated yesterday, and Aquilla Q. Jones and William N. Harding were named as executors. Both qualified as such by furnishing a bond of $14,000. The deceased left an estate valued at about $40,000, one-half of which is devised and bequeathed to her children, John C. Webb, William H. Webb. Mary Alice Jones, Pinkie M. Patterson and Courtland D. Webb. To her grandchildren the decedent bequeathed the balance of her property, real and personal, subject to conditions. The will was executed on Nov. 22, 1889.

It Claimed Local Prejudice. Upon application of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, which is defendant in a suit brought in the Lake Circuit Court by George W. Schroeder and others to compel the payment of $2,000 by that railroad company in the matter of the John F. Jarnecke ditch case, the suit was vesterday removed from that tribunal to the federal court. The defendant company claims that, because of local prejudice it could not hope to obtain justice in Lake county or any other county in Indiana.

An Expensive Dog Bite. Mrs. Gertie Brown, who claimed $200 damages in the Circuit Court for alleged injuries received from the attack of a vicious bulldog, was awarded the full amount by a jury yesterday. John Grace and wife were the owners of the dog. The case was brought to the Circuit Court on an appeal from the justice courts. Left Property in This Country. Robert Mainland died in Scotland, Jan. 11, 1893, leaving property in this country. Upon request of the family solicitor from Scotland, Alexander M. Archer was yesterday appointed administrator in this county, of the estate. Bond was given in the sum

PROF. COULTER'S LAST LECTURE. He Concludes His Botanical Course at Plymouth.

Yesterday morning Prof. J. M. Coulter gave the last lecture in the botanical course at Plymouth. He discussed the mechanism of plant movements. Contractility of protoplasm is the ultimate cause of locomotion movements. What contractility is is not known, but its manifestations are known. This is illustrated by the action of a muscle under stimulus. The muscle becomes shorter and thicker, but it does not become less in bulk. On the other hand, when a plant is stimulated by touching the sensitive cells, for instance, the stamens, there is a dimunition in bulk, and the cells become flaccid. This is because stimulus annihilates turgescence or the swollen condition of the cells, causing the cell sap to pass into the intercellular spaces. Stimulus also results in currents of water moving in the region affected. The question is how does stimulus abolish turgidity? To understand this the conditions of turgescence must be known. When cells are full of active protoplasm there are three essentials, first, the cell wall must be elastic; second, there must be something in solution in the cell sap which draws the sap toward it; third, the protoplasmic lining must offer far greater resistance to sap passing out than to its passing in. So when a cell is stimulated it ceases to be turgid because some molecular change has been brought about in the protoplasmic lining so that the sap can pass out readily. The loss of turgescence brings about the resulting movement. The transmission of stimuli in plants was studied by Dutrochet. He experimented with the mimosa and found the transmission of the impulse took place in the bast-parenchyma of the fibrovascular bundles, or the so-called veins. The protoplasm in these cells is continuous and has the power of conductivity. So if there is a nervous system in plants it is in the bastparenchyma. But Darwin and others have found that stimuli are transmitted by the mesophyll or thin-walled cells also. So the question is undecided. After giving the biological significance of plant movement, Dr. Coulter closed with a tribute to Darwin, the emancipator of botany, who, in his last years, revealed the kingdom of life in botany by showing that plants are not mummies, but living, active beings, working for themselves.

No Judging a Man by His Teeth.

"A man's hand or foot is always a good indication of his refinement," said a dentist yesterday, "but, strange as it may seem, nothing of this sort can be judged by the teeth. The teeth are no criterion of a man's education or refinement. I have seen the most refined, cultivated and highly educated men I have ever attended with what we call 'animal teeth'-teeth such as are found in the brute creation. On the other hand, I have had as many patrons vulgar, uncultivated people, who had the most perfeetly formed sets of teeth you can imagine. A person would suppose that refinement would have the same effect upon the teeth that it has upon the features, the hands or feet. Yet the perfection of the human tooth is found mostly in the mouths of uncultivated people."

On men's cheeks above the beard line, on the nose, sars and between the eyebrows; also, spiral, ingrow-ing hair on the sides of the neck and on the throat, caused by close and frequent shaving; also, in-growing eyelashes, destroyed forever without pain, tear, shock or injury by the ELECTRIC NEEDLE by Dr. J. Van Dyck, President of the Boston Electrolysis Company, Circle Park Hotel, 13 Circle street, Indianapolis, Ind. This superfluous growth of hair on ladies' faces is surprisingly prevalent. We see it in the drawing-room, in the church, theater and wherever ladies congregate. Sixty of every one hundred ladies have more or less superfluous hair at sometime in their The most barbarous and painful methods have been resorted to in order to relieve this disfiguring blemish—such as the use of depilatories, hot wax plasters, scapstone, lighted tapers, the tweezers, scissors and razor—but alas! these all make the hairs grow harsher, coarser and more numerous, as thousands of ladies know to their sorrow.

There is positively only one method in the world by which this obnoxious growth can be destroyed forever, and that is by klectrolysis, the ELECTRIC NEEDLE OPERATION. This is purely a scientific process, and is indorsed by all physicians and surgeons of eminence as being the only method anown to science by which the Hair taptilae can be destroyed so the hair will Lever grow again. Dr. Van Dyck was the first physician in the world to successfully perform this operation. He has devoted several hours daily for eighteen years to the permanent removal of superfluous hair by the Electric Needle, and has cured over 10,000 cases. Remember this, no matter how bad your case may be, nor how long it has lasted, in fact even if you have a regular beard, Dr. Van Dyck can destroy every noticable hair forever; and unless you have them destroyed by this method you will have be carry them to your grave with you.

THE SKIN, COMPLEXION, HAIR AND SCALP.

Dr. Van Dyck has devoted twenty-two years of his life to the study, care, management and treatment of the skin, complexion, hair and scalp, including all blemishes, discolorations, diseases and conditions of the same. The human family are subject to nearly 200 diseases of the skin, about 100 of which are common to this country. ACNE—Pinples appear on the forehead, cheeks and nose, and sometimes on the back and breast. They are white, red or yellowish, hard, inflamed of soit. In various cases are often associated with an oily, greasy skin, and also with blackheads; affects both sexes between the ages of fourteen and forty. In many cases the face becomes pitted and scarred is very unsightly and distiguring.

GOMEDONES, commonly caned blackheads—The peres of the face become alled with plugs of hard, white sebaceous substance, capped with black specks; is assocated often with Acne and with an only greaty aking seen an the property of the pr oily, greasy skin; seen on the nose, cheeks, fore-head and ears, and affects both sexes. LIVER SPOTS-D rk, brownish, dirty, muddy looking spots on the forehead, cheeks, nose, around he mouth and neck; affects ladies mostly; is very appropring and disfiguring, often looking as if the mouth and neck was soiled.

STIPPLED SKIN—The pores of the cheeks and nose become deep, colarged and dilated, looking as if the skin had been plerced with pins, leaving the punctures after withdrawing the pins; le very unsightly, imparting a harsh, dissipated and unrefined appearance to the face.

11.BD NOSE—The nose becomes inflamed, irritated, and finally the pores become coarse and deep, and time red capillary veins appear in streaks and corves on the sides and ends of the nose. In time the nose enlarges and becomes a deformity.
